

ARTIK

ART & ARCHITECTURE

Artik Art & Architecture is proud to announce the promotion of this recognized leader and to introduce a new addition to our K-12 Architecture division.

Morana Medved
Director of Interiors

“We need to talk about being sustainable and implementing it into design whether clients ask for it or not. That’s the big goal.”

Artik is proud to announce the promotion of Morana Medved to Director of Interiors, where she will be leading the effort of formalizing and expanding Artik’s interior design services to provide a more integrated design approach to clients.

Morana’s vast portfolio includes a variety of projects in hospitality, the workplace, healthcare, and education. She enjoys the process of design: from collaborating with clients on programming to seeing how the finished project resonates with the client. “It’s like solving a puzzle, and I love seeing the clients expressing their excitement,” she says. Morana is also great at people development. She loves connecting with people and working with Artik staff. Teaching and mentoring are an essential part of her life, “a crucial part of who I am” as she stated.

As both a LEED and WELL accredited professional, Morana is always conscious of and committed to sustainability and occupant wellness. She has gained valuable experience from multiple high-profile LEED-certified projects. “We need to talk about being sustainable and implementing it into design whether clients ask for it or not. That’s the big goal,” she says.

“Covid-19 gave us a chance to think more of occupant wellbeing in design, especially with educational projects.” She believes as architects and designers, we should be dedicated to creating flexible environments that the users can adjust to their needs for maximum comfort and an enjoyable experience.

We are thrilled to introduce our newest team member and Project Manager, Eva Sabala. Eva has added her extensive experience in Revit and graphic design techniques to the firm’s talent base. In addition to supporting the firm’s K-12 division. She loves being part of the Artik family, where everyone is collaborative and welcoming.

Eva demonstrated her talent and interest in art from a young age. Her interest in architecture started when she was introduced to the architectural field by her high school art teacher. “I enjoy finding the creative path for design solutions and am amazed when watching and monitoring the building construction progress,” says Eva. “To see the client’s satisfaction is also very rewarding.”

Eva has extensive experience with all stages of design in residential, commercial, and educational projects. She enjoys working with school communities and finding the design potential in such work. “The school staff really care about their students and always prioritize them when discussing design, programming, and solutions,” she says. “They can also have very interesting and inspiring ideas and visions.” She does point out that, sometimes budget can be limited, but that’s the fun part of being an architect, turning restrictions into challenges.

Eva Sabala
Project Manager

“I enjoy finding the creative path for design solutions and am amazed when watching and monitoring the building construction progress.”